Expert Knowledge at www.HarrodHorticultural.com

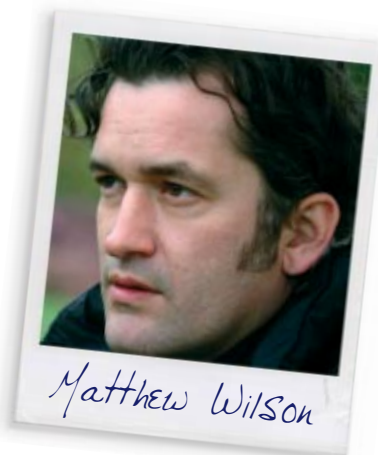

To quench the thirst of customers' desire for greater organic growing knowledge, Harrod Horticultural have added to their success of charting Stephanie's Kitchen Garden project at www.harrodhorticultural.com by welcoming 3 very special on-line columnists.

Chris Beardshaw

Kim Wilde

Matthew Wilson

Chosen for their mutual passion for organic gardening, award winning garden designers, writers and TV presenters Chris Beardshaw and Kim Wilde, as well as author, presenter and RHS Curator, Matthew Wilson, are writing a series of exclusive articles for the Harrod Horticultural website. Their wealth of knowledge producing fresh, full flavour crops by working with nature and using traditional methods as well as the latest technology gives everyone the chance to pick up a tip or two! So for those itching to get out in the spring air and looking for inspiration or ways to improve garden project success, here's the place to look.

The gardening subject areas being covered by these ever popular gardening personalities are diverse and highly topical. Their experiences of raised bed growing to pest control, composting to efficient watering and harvesting to fruit pressing among others, are wonderfully captured in candid accounts, making it feel like one gardener talking to another over the garden fence!

So how to enjoy all these engaging articles that are peppered with handy advice? Signing up for FREE e-newsletters on the home page at www.harrodhorticultural.com will ensure you become the first to receive the latest bi-weekly bulletin. But why not catch up with those that you have missed so far? They are easily accessed on the website alongside a biography of each of our personalities, a chance to find out a little more about their gardening talents and achievements. And don't keep it all to yourself! Share the articles with friends by using our 'send to a friend' link, after all, it's only by exchanging knowledge that we can all succeed in harvesting bountiful crops in the garden!
